

Bringing Learning to Life

Learn and Serve - Michigan

What is Learn and Serve - Michigan?

Service-learning is a teaching and learning approach that connects meaningful service to the community with classroom instruction. When done well, it enriches learning, cultivates responsibility, and fosters personal growth. Service-learning helps youth see beyond the classroom and into the community where they can learn math, science, language arts, and other required subjects by addressing community needs and solving real-life problems.

Service-learning creates a commitment among young people to be part of the solution - and also increases their likelihood of becoming life-long volunteers.

Learn and Serve - Michigan, administered by the Michigan Community Service Commission (MCSC) in partnership with the Michigan Department of Education, is part of the Learn and Serve America grant program supported by the Corporation for National and Community Service. The MCSC funds the development and implementation of high-quality, academic service-learning programs in K-12 schools.

21 counties will host 25 Learn and Serve - Michigan school-based programs in 2010-2011.

- These programs will mobilize more than 2,500 teachers to engage more than 50,000 students in service-learning activities this year.
- Through more than 1,000,000 hours of service-learning, those students will address issues important to their community and relevant to classroom learning.
- More than 5,000 adult volunteers will assist Learn and Serve - Michigan programs in completing community-revitalization projects focused on issues such as: health education, food collection/distribution, child literacy, recycling, animal welfare, and others.

"Service-learning has a positive impact on students' academic achievement, personal and social development, and civic engagement. It provides numerous opportunities for students to apply what they are learning to solve real-world community problems."

Financial Impact

The Michigan Community Service Commission, in partnership with the Michigan Department of Education, is granting $476,489 in Federal Funds for Learn and Serve - Michigan's 2010-2011 school-based programs.

Learn and Serve - Michigan's school-based programs for 2010-2011 will leverage $700,483 In Match Funds.

In 2009-2010, Learn and Serve - Michigan supported 20 school-based programs.

- 2,508 teachers engaged 29,181 students in 606,937 hours of service-learning in the 2009-2010 school year.
- 1,212 adult volunteers assisted Learn and Serve - Michigan participants in addressing local issues through community-revitalization projects.

Service-learning has been shown to:

- Build critical thinking and communication skills,
- Increase student motivation, and
- Improve academic knowledge and performance.

Based on research conducted by RMC, Inc., organizations that partner with students on service-learning say the activity:

- Positively affects students' respect for others,
- Creates commitment to working on social or community problems,
- Encourages a sense of belonging to a community, and
- Boosts self-esteem through enabling students to view their achievements.

"As a member of the Michigan Community Service Commission Board and a life-long educator, I am proud of the impact service-learning has on our state's students both through service AND academics. Service-learning brings relevancy to learning and helps students connect to and better understand their community, school, and the needs of others."

Michael J. Hill
Superintendent,
Traverse Bay
Intermediate School District
& MCSC Commissioner

"My involvement in service-learning has made me more committed to the issues that matter most to me in my community and on a broader scale. It's exciting to make a difference as a young student and impact many others; including my peers, my neighbors, and those in need."
